Delivery of Physical Art: In person delivery is always preferred over shipping. For physical artworks Delivery will be provided locally free of charge. Delivery within the driving area but outside the North Shore area will be provided at a listed delivery price. Anywhere outside of the Artists driving area will require shipping by mail. This can get pricey and may be upwards of $100 depending on the size and weight of your canvas.

Sharing of Art: Social media sharing and other public sharing of artwork are vital for marketing purposes of the Artist. This includes, but is not limited to, artwork potentially being displayed on artist's Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, website, studio, brochures, web and print advertisements and business documents. The Customer consents to completed work, as well as in process photos, being used for these purposes.

If there are things that the customer does not consent to then they are as follows. This may result in a higher price as it ultimately hurts the Artist's ability to advertise business representatively:

Initials:

The Artist agrees to place a hold on the sharing of artwork if that is necessary for the plans of the customer (such as birthday gifts, anniversary gifts, usage for an event etc). Are there any dates/times that the customer prefers that sharing of the artwork be held until: YES / NO

If yes, these are the details of the hold:

Initials:

When sharing work publicly, the Customer agrees to give the Artist credit though clear and visible labeling, tagging or verbal acknowledgement. If sharing multiple times in one place, one initial credit is sufficient for remaining displays. (For example if the customer posts the artwork on Facebook multiple times, it is only necessary to tag the artist once in the first instance). Remaining tags are appreciated however!
